Plantation Drive

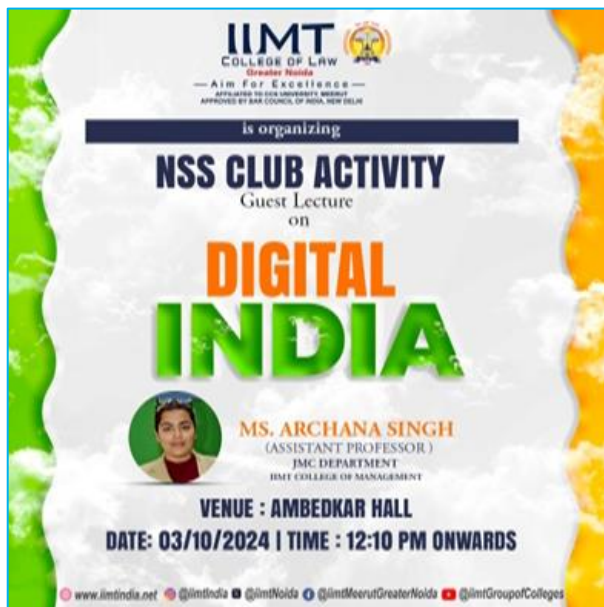

Under the guidance of Director Prof (Dr.) Sanjay Singh, IIMT College of Law organized “Plantation Activity”. Dr. Nidhi Bhardwaj was the coordinator of the event. The activity was conducted to mitigate climate changes.

Climate change is a major contributor to environmental degradation because it can cause soil erosion, which is the process of wearing away the land surface by the action of natural forces such as wind, water, and ice. Climate change can cause an increase in the intensity and frequency of storms, worsening erosion. This can be especially damaging in areas that are already prone to soil erosion due to their topography or land use.

Guest Lecture on Digital India

The Department of Law organized a guest lecture on “Alternate Dispute Resolution” on 23rd Oct, 2024 at 11:10 AM onwards. The guest lecture and session were delivered by Mr. Abhinav Singh (Advocate Supreme Court, Senior Panelist Central Govt.).

This activity was organized by Dr. Kaushiki Roy. Alternative dispute resolution (ADR) is a means of settling a dispute, conflict, or claim without courtroom litigation. Instead, the parties involved agree to use an ADR process such as mediation or arbitration. Alternative dispute resolution has gained broad acceptance by the public and the legal profession. If both parties involved in a civil (non-criminal) dispute willingly sign a contract to do so, they are free to choose ADR to resolve the matter.

When a lawsuit is pending, in some cases, courts encourage or require the litigants to use ADR to help settle disputes more amicably and reduce the court system’s heavy caseload.
